

Problems Handicapping Educational Preparation in the General Diploma according to the National Standards of Accreditation at the Sector of Education Faculties, April 2013

(an Analytical Field Study)

Abstract:

Recently, there has been a growing willingness of the general educational diploma. This led to a lot of problems handicapping this educational preparation, particularly in a time the society needs well-qualified students and graduates in the faculty of education according to the national standards of accreditation. Hence, this study is proposed and dedicated to answer the following main question:

What are the Problems handicapping the educational preparation at the general diploma according to the national standards of accreditation in the sector of Education Faculties at 2013? What are the suggested plans to face such problems and to improve the student's educational preparation of the general diploma according to the national standards of accreditation?

A study was accomplished using the descriptive method. A questionnaire was applied to a sample of 272 students to identify these problems according to the opinions of teaching practice students of the one year system & the two years system, general educational diploma in the faculty of Education, Sohag University.

The field study revealed that there are problems handicapping the educational preparation in the general educational diploma, such as the problems related to: registering and acceptance system, curricula, student's training, study system& appointment, evaluation & examination system, financial capabilities, and others related to education & learning resources.

In the light of the study results, a proposal was presented to improve the educational preparation in the general educational diploma according to national standards of accreditation and to eliminate the handicapping problems.